

The Questions That Matter

A one-page spine for parliamentary and City Hall scrutiny

Prepared for: the Office of Iqbal Mohamed MP (Dewsbury and Batley) — by Brandon Myers, brandonmyers.net — June 2026

These questions are built to be unbreakable: each is anchored to a confirmed fact or phrased conditionally, so there is no premise to dispute, and none can be deflected with "we do not hold that information" — because they ask why, and a refusal to explain why is itself the story.

The framing question

Why — across both the Metropolitan Police and the Ministry of Justice — is the most sensitive citizen and officer data being joined up on these platforms with the oversight switched off: under-threshold contracts, no published Data Protection Impact Assessments, no ethical reviews, no opt-outs — and who decided that was acceptable?

Metropolitan Police — Palantir "Unified Data Platform"

1. How many contracts did the MPS enter into with Palantir for the Unified Data Platform, what was the value of each, and what is the combined total including any extension?
2. If the programme was delivered under more than one contract, why were they not aggregated for the £500,000 threshold at which Deputy Mayor approval and a published decision are required (MOPAC Scheme of Delegation and Consent, para 4.8; Procurement Act 2023, Schedule 3)?
3. Why was a Palantir pilot processing officers' sickness, absence, overtime and work-device geolocation data not put to the Deputy Mayor for approval, with a published Policing and Crime Decision?
4. Why is the extension cost being withheld as "commercially sensitive" — what is that protecting?
5. Why was there no published DPIA or ethical review before profiling officers' special-category and location data?
6. Why Palantir, sole-sourced — when that same single-supplier failing led the Deputy Mayor to block the separate ~£50m Unified Operational Analytics deal weeks later?

Ministry of Justice — Splink

7. Why is ethnicity processed in the Splink linkage with no Article 9 condition named in any public document?

8. Why has no DPIA been published, and why is there no notification or opt-out for the people whose probation records are sent to the police daily under the North Essex pilot?
 9. Why does the "Data First" record say the data is "not for operational decision-making" while the "Splink Master Record" documents exactly that — operational, person-identifying use?

Every supporting fact, source and caveat is in the accompanying documents. Where a figure is reported rather than confirmed against the primary record, it is flagged as such — these questions stand regardless of the exact pence, because they go to rationale and accountability, not to a contested number.
